PSG-Kaphilca Surges Ahead in new schoolyear

Education Undersecretary Ramon Bacani receiving reports on PSG-Kaphilca from Principal Roberto Fresnido with Amb. Tiglao.

Philippine School in Greece, formerly the Katipunan Philippines Cultural Academy (KAPHILCA), surged ahead at the start of the current school year, 2009-2010, with an enrollment of 220 children in all levels of its curricular offerings. This is more than double its initial enrollment of 106 when it started in 2006.

Enrollment officially started on September 1, 2009 and formal classroom instruction started on September 7, 2009.

The school, which integrated the former KAPHILCA elementary school and the Philippine Learning Center, has been in existence for the past three years in its location at No. 64 Pontou Street, Ambelokipi.

PSG-KAPHILCA is the only Philippine ischool in Greece with permit to operate from the Greek Ministry of Education.

SPECIAL FEATURE Charita's Story Settling Down in Greece By: Mrs. Yoko Ramos-Vingno

The following article contains excerpts from an article of the same title and author featured in the April 2009 issue of "Buhay OFW," a publication of Atlas Publishing Co. Inc.

One of the most enthusiastic supporters of the Philippine Embassy is the president and founder of the Philippine Overseas Society, Mrs. Charita Ballalo Bataan -- and this is her story.

Charita Ballalo Bataan's life seemed smooth and easy, she felt she had it all having been blessed with 7 nice children from a loving husband who took very good care of her and the children. Sadly, this all would change when a sudden and severe attack of stroke would snap the life out of her husband at the age of 53.

Charita's husband Leonardo was an officer of the Philippine Constabulary. The marriage produced 7 children – two boys and five girls. Raising 7 children was not much of a problem as Leonardo was a good provider who had hired a helper for Charita to assist in her daily household routine.

So it was then until Leonardo's fateful demise that Charita ceased to live in her comfort zone. Reality and the feeling of helplessness stared her in the face: no husband, left without a work and seven growing kids who needed to go to school were too much for Charita to bear. She composed herself and took matters into her own hands. Having the future of her children in mind, Charita set aside her pride and accepted the invitation of a cousin working abroad who found her a job as a domestic help in Greece, a work she had not even imagined when her husband was alive.

Chari arrived in Athens in 1980 and found employ with a Greek diplomat couple. She learned her way around from this kind and generous couple who taught her the basics of household routines in a diplomatic household.

Chari took her day off on Sundays where she went to church and was able to meet other Filipinos. Kind and approachable by nature, Chari went out of her way to extend assistance to fellow Filipinos who had asked her for help concerning various kinds of problems. She recalls bringing food and other necessities to Filipinos who were imprisoned due to overstaying in Greece. Her group of Filipino acquaintances grew - and her newfound friends started to call her Chari.

For nine years Chari stood by her diplomat employer and when the latter was deployed in France Chari opted to stav in Greece. She fell in love with the country that had welcomed her and had given her the means to provide for her children. Also, Chari found it difficult to leave behind the friendships she had developed over the years with the other Filipinos. Again on her own Chari, was fortunate to find work and a decent place to stay that she would call home the same place where she currently lives. Work was aplenty – and she took advantage of this. She put in long hours - accepting a lot of part time work that netted her easily Two Thousand Three Hundred Dollars a month. This is a tall order for a single mother who had to immerse herself in work to overcome her homesickness and lingering thoughts of her children.

Chari's solace was the Filipino community. She joined Filipino organizations and became very active in community undertakings. Many Filipino friends joined her when she formed the "Integrated Barangay of the Philippines" and was voted its president. Shortly after she left the group and in 1998 during the Philippine Centennial Year, Chari founded and was voted president of the "Philippine Overseas Society." This organization of 11 years has received several citations and recognition for its efforts in promoting Philippine culture in Greece and, helping less fortunate students in the Philippines through the organization's "Tuloy Aral Program". For her tireless and selfless efforts, Chari was twice nominated for "Ang Bagong Bayani Award".

"Tita Chari", as she is now fondly addressed in the Filipino community, has been staying in Greece for the last twenty nine years. Chari was able to help about seventy Filipinos to find work in Greece. She helped her two sisters-in-law, her four children and a grandchild plus friends and other relatives to stay and work legally in the country that had been so kind to her and welcomed her with open arms.

Chari already has two houses in Antipolo and proudly – at 64 – she plans to travel a lot and, enjoy life with family, grandchildren and friends - and still live here in Athens!■

It is the only Philippine school in Europe that is accredited by the Philippine Department of Education to offer the Basic Education Curriculum in all three levels: preschool, elementary and secondary.

With veteran educator Robert Fresnido as Principal since 2006, PSG-KAPHILCA is also the only school in Europe that offers a well-balanced Filipino education for the Filipino child, giving equal focus on both the academic and the co-curricular aspects of basic education.

These co-curricular activities are held without prejudicing classroom instruction which will also be intensified to the point of academic excellence.

The new textbooks that the school ordered from the Philippines have arrived and are now awaiting release by the Customs office of Greece.

On the administrative side, the school is pursuing efforts to find a new building suitable for its increasing enrollment and compliant with Greek standards for school buildings. The school is already authorized by the Greek government to hire Filipino teachers from the Philippines with family visas. Its teachers have teaching permits from the Greek Ministry of National Education and Religious Affairs.

This school year, the school has institutionalized its scholarship

This is in line with the thrust of the school towards better service rather than profit.

A recent development this school year was the five-day visit of Department of Education Undersecretary Ramon C. Bacani, upon the invitation of Ambassador Tiglao. He visited the school to check on the school's compliance with DepEd regulations in connection with the school's request to upgrade its accreditation to a permanent status, as it had been given full permit since 2006. Bacani congratulated the school for its professionalism and its teachers' dedication to the youth of the Filipino community in Greece. He pledged his support as education full undersecretary to the strengthening of the school.

the Forum and noted in his speech at the opening session that the issue of migration is close to his heart because he too had been a migrant to the US.

The Forum was divided into three roundtable discussions:

Roundtable 1 - How to make the migration-development nexus work for the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals; Roundtable 2 -Migrant integration, reintegration and circulation for development; and Roundtable 3 - Policy and institutional coherence and partnerships.

The Philippine delegation participated actively in all roundtable discussions and their interventions were included in the reports. POEA Administrator final Manalili outlined the Philippines' initial experience of mainstreaming migration in development planning and invited technical and financial support from the international community, particularly in research studies to gather data on the current status of migration in the Philippines and to draw up tools and indicators to measure the direct and indirect contributions of migration in development.

In Roundtable 2, OWWA Administrator Dimzon called on governments of countries of destination of migrants to mobilize resources to distribute the benefits of circular migration back to the countries of origin of migrants. In Roundtable 3, Consul-General Mahilum -West proposed the establishment of a "website networking system" that will enhance the dissemination of outcomes and other data contained in existing websites such as those of the GFMD, International Organization for Migration, International Labor Organization and the Regional Consultative Processes.

Labor Attache Imson acted as Rapporteur in Session 2.1 of Roundtable 2 on the topic "Inclusion protection and acceptance of migrants in society linking human rights and migrant empowerment for development". In the sidelines of GMFD, Secretary Roque held separate bilateral meetings with heads of delegations of selected countries and IOM Director General William Swing to discuss employment issues and other urgent issues.

Consular Updates

The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) launched on 11 August 2009 the Philippine ePassport that will make the country at par with developed countries.

A joint project of the DFA and the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, the issuance of the ePassport makes the Philippines compliant with international standards set by the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), of which it is a member.

The ePassport is highly secure, hence avoids passport reproduction and tampering. Following are the security features of the new Philipine ePassport:

- 1. CHIP an interoperable ICAO compliant chip embedded which contains the personal data of the passport holder and can be read by any standard border control machine worldwide. The chip is integrated with a security mechanism that has been proven to be protected from forceful scheming of data, cloning and remote reading
- 2. HOLOGRAM LAMINATE a highly complex ultra thin portraying diffractive and optically variable color effect on varied viewing angle;
- 3. PAGES printed with customized invisible images on every page that can be seen only thru UV light;

4. PAGE PERFORATION – the passport number is laser perforated on all pages which acts as a security against visa page tampering; with 5. HIDDEN AND CODED INFORMATION – the passport owner's name and passport number are encoded into the portrait hence which links the photograph to the owner and can only be seen by a specialized decoding lens at border controls;

- 6. MICROTEXT GHOST IMAGE – the micro letter of the owner's personal data and passport number are embedded and can only be seen using a decoding lens;
- 7. SERIES the Philippine ePassport begins with EAxxxxxx;
- 8. DATA PAGES the Philippine ePassport data pages have different fluorescent rainbow effect. The ePassport has forty-four (44) pages. Despite its advanced security features, the Philippine ePassport will be available for a fee of P950 or €60.

FA launches ePassport

The ePassport will be initially available at DFA Manila, to be followed by Philippine Embassies and Consulates abroad and throughout the Philippines through DFA's regional offices.

Previously issued passports (MRP and non-MRP) are valid until their expiry.

OWWA offers free Greek language, care-giving lessons to OFWs

Free Greek lessons for OWWA members started Saturday, October 10, 2009. OWWA deems it necessary, nay imperative, for the Filipinos to learn correctly the basics of the Greek language to effectively and efficiently function in their respective jobs. Further, it is observed that knowledge of the language, at least conversational, is an added value for Greek employers in job selection and promotion.

Another course opened is for those who want to upgrade their skills as caregivers. The module includes not only proper care giving to the elderly and babies, but also for pets, like dogs and cats. The course was requested by many OFWs who found it wanting in the course of performing their jobs as household service workers and those who need the qualification to land as caregivers in other countries of the United States and Canada.

All Filipinos in Greece are encouraged to take the opportunity and invited to join the classes. For details, please call 2106982871 or 6906469027 anytime of the day.

22 Filipino Crew of M/V Irene EM Released and Repatriated

Capt. Nicetas Garcia and the other 21 Filipino seamen on board MV Irene EM were released unharmed on September 14, 2009 by Somali pirates after 5 months of negotiations.

The crew were examined and found in good health by the physician of 'Eversent', a Dutch warship vessel that protected Irene EM at the Somalia coast until its voyage to the Philippines.

The Filipino crew underwent another complete checkup at the port city of Salalah, Oman on September 17 and received a month's salary bonus with the assurance that they would receive their full pay through their manning agent upon reaching Manila.

They were reunited with their families in Manila on 29 September 2009.

During the entire negotiation between the shipowner and the pirates, Labor Attaché George Eduvala and Tito Baldago, POLO Administrative Officer, were in constant contact with the officers of Chian Spirit Maritime, the Greek shipowner to ensure the health and safety of the crew and to speed up their release.

MV Irene E. M, was the last of the four Greek ships, with a total of 76 Filipino seamen on board, seized by Somali pirates in 2009.

M/t Titan and its 17 Filipino crew was released on April 15, Mv Saldanha and the 19 Filipino crew on April 25, and Mt Nipayia and the 17 Filipinos sailors on board on May 9.

Earlier in the year, the POLO attended to the repatriation of 23 Filipino seamen on board four vessels stranded in Nigeria. ■
